Cover Photo . . . . .
Time turns back as three members of this year's freshman class pose in costume and position similar to the well-recognized picture of the first class (see page one) in 1876. And curiously enough, all three have "historical ties" with the early days of Juniata College.
Peggy Brumbaugh (left) of Chevy Chase, Md., is the great granddaughter of Dr. Andrew B. Brumbaugh, one of the three founders of the college and the man credited as being the originator of this educational institution. And she is the granddaughter of Dr. Gaius M. Brumbaugh NE 79, honorary chairman of the board of trustees, who was the young scholar and only man in the original picture of the first class.
In Dr. Brumbaugh's position is James Quinter Holsopple Jr., Washington, D.C., whose great grandfather was Elder James Quinter, first president of this college.
M. Joyce Gibbel (right) of Lititz, Pa., is the granddaughter of Henry R. Gibbel NE 88, third chairman of the board of trustees. Her father is Henry B. Gibbel '26, present chairman of the board.
The original three students in the first class have been recorded as Miss Maggie Miller (Mrs. Campbell), Miss Rebecca Cornelius (Mrs. T. Wilday Black), and Dr. Gaius M. Brumbaugh.

THE TALK OF THE CAMPUS

Yesterday and Today

FOR SEVENTY-FIVE years Juniata College has devoted itself to discovering latent human resources and developing them.

This it has done by aiding students to attain the values to be found in a cultural education, where the whole man may develop, and not just that part of him which must work for a living.

Juniata's founding and its history have been shaped by a desire to foster the highest human virtues and to aid young men and women in developing their innate powers to the place where they can become responsible and useful citizens, folks who are not only able to do things, but who understand the values of the things they do.

Juniata has tried to define clearly the type of education which it considers of highest value for our present generation, and is prepared to devote its resources to helping young men and women to achieve those particular educational goals.

Juniata College, on its 75th anniversary, pauses to examine its situation, evaluate its program, clarify its objectives, and plan what is necessary to achieve its objectives on a sound and enduring basis.

In this day, no need is so grave as for citizens who in community and national affairs can bring trained minds along with wisdom and understanding to the solution of the nation's problems.

Without them there can be little hope for a nation where power over physical nature has outstripped the wisdom to use that power. Juniata College confidently undertakes the task of educating thoughtful men and women in the broad responsibilities of democratic citizens.

Juniata's 75th anniversary observance recalls the growth of the school from its first class in 1876. Then, the total enrollment was three, the faculty numbered one, the "campus" was one borrowed room, and the curriculum was one subject.

Professor J. M. Zuck was the teacher. His general subject was "Mental and Moral Science," and the three students met with him in the "Pilgrim Building" at 14th and Washington streets in Huntingdon. The name of the school then was "The Huntingdon Normal School," not becoming Juniata until 1894.

Since that first class, the Church of the Brethren institution has shown a steady growth from a small normal school, maintained for the training of teachers, to a fully-accredited College of Arts and Sciences. Juniata now has more than 7000 alumni and former students in many walks of life, especially business, education, the ministry, science, homemaking, law and medicine.

The curriculum and faculty expanded to meet the needs of the growing student body. Such courses as mathematics, Bible, evidences of Christianity, Latin, Greek, German, art and music were added during the first few years. Business and home economics were among the new subjects early in the 20th Century, and by 1918 there was a scientific course.

Juniata achieved its present status in 1925 when the normal course was dropped and the school became a college of arts and sciences. After a curriculum revision and expansion in 1937, the college, with 50 members of the faculty, now offers more than 300 courses in its three main divisions of study: arts and languages, the social studies, and the natural sciences.

Juniata's physical growth also has been steady and well-founded. Now, in its 75th year, the school has 20 principal buildings on a 55-acre campus—that started from the one borrowed room back in 1876. The first building was Founders Hall, erected in 1879. Then came Brumbaugh Hall in 1890, and Students Hall and Oneida Hall in 1895.

THE FIRST CLASS

Life In '76

LIFE was relatively simple and unhurried when the first class in what is now Juniata College was held on April 17, 1876.

- The first intelligible sentence was transmitted by telephone by Alexander Graham Bell.
- Johns Hopkins University, the first real graduate school in America, opened in Baltimore.
- Gold was important—and there was a stampede to Deadwood Gulch in the Black Hills of West Dakota territory.

The other buildings have come along as the college has grown. It is significant that the gymnasium was built in 1901 on the 25th anniversary. It will be "succeeded" now by the new Memorial Physical Education Building, which is to be dedicated to the 675 Juniataans who served in World War II, 24 of whom made the supreme sacrifice.

Student interests have kept pace with the college's growth in other directions. From the "Eclectic Literary Society" and the games of catch in the street during the first few years, extra-curricular activities now include virtually every kind of endeavor, such as numerous clubs of specialized career interest, May Day, Mountain Day, intramural and inter-collegiate athletics, and student publications. From the very first, there has been intense student interest in religious activities, represented now by such events as regular chapel and church services, Spiritual Emphasis Week and religious organizations.

Juniata has had six presidents: James Quinter (1878-1888); Henry B. Brumbaugh (1888-1893); Martin Grove Brumbaugh (1893-1910; 1924-1930); I. Harvey Brumbaugh (1899-1911, acting; 1911-1924); Charles Calvert Ellis (1930-1943); and Calvert N. Ellis, who was inaugurated in 1943. (See below)

The equipment and endowment of the institution—starting literally from nothing in 1876—now represent an investment of more than two and a quarter million dollars. The college now is engaged in a million-dollar postwar development fund, more than half of which has been contributed.

FOUNDERS' HALL AND LADIES' HALL (Now Brumbaugh)—1894

Founders In 1879

DESCRIBED in early catalogs as "the New Normal School Building," Founders' Hall was constructed way back in 1879 in the form of a "T", the vertical stem pointing north.

In the early days the basement was used as a dining room, and housed a pantry and a kitchen. The first floor contained the principal's office, two recitation rooms, sleeping quarters for women, and a chapel.

The second floor of Founders' Hall was constructed to accommodate recitation rooms, teacher's quarters, women's rooms, and study rooms for day students.

The topmost floor was given entirely to accommodations for men attending "The Brethren's Normal School, and Collegiate Institute."

Interesting to note is the fanfare accorded the opening of the building, and the initiation of the school in the local paper.

"The Brethren's Normal School building was inspected by a large number of our citizens the past few days. The term began most auspiciously yesterday." Huntingdon Globe, April 9, 1879.

Do You Know Phebe?

WHATEVER happened to the popularity of Phebe as a girl's name?

Take the history of Juniata College, for instance.

The school's first woman teacher was Phebe W. Weakley, and the first woman graduate was Phebe R. Norris in 1879.

Now, a quick look at the records shows that of the current student body of 570 and a faculty of 50, there's not one Phebe at Juniata.

P.S. Do you know a Phebe?

What's In a Name?

JUNIATA College has an answer for the familiar question, what's in a name?

The answer is, other names. Juniata knows, from its own history.

The Church of the Brethren college, which this year is celebrating its 75th anniversary, has had four other names. It was founded on April 17, 1876, as the Huntingdon Normal School, then successively became the Brethren's Normal School and Collegiate Institute, the Brethren Normal College, then the Normal College.

Finally, in 1894, Juniata was chosen. This, incidentally, is an Iroquois Indian word and is also the name of the river near which the college is located.

Even Huntingdon, the college's location, once had another name, which was, curiously, Standing Stone—also of Indian derivation.

Do You Remember When?

ANSWERS ON PAGE 16

Study By Moonlight

MOST YOUNG people today do not use moonlight to study by.

But it was not always thus. One of the first benefactors of Juniata College, reported in an early college history his determination to get an education:

"My father considered it his religious duty to raise me in ignorance, and so did not permit me to have a light to study by. This did not daunt my courage, for I would crawl out on the porch roof at night and read by the friendly light of the moon."

Even Profs Forget

WOULD you consider gargling with a mysterious chemical named sodium chloride, or putting it on your food?

You would—it's ordinary table salt. But sometimes even chemistry teachers forget, as a look into the 75-year history of Juniata College reveals.

One time in the 1880's, M. G. Brumbaugh, a Juniata chemistry teacher, had a sore throat. He called A. B. Brumbaugh, a college trustee and physician, and told him his troubles. M. G. later wrote:

"He was the soul of frankness. He said, 'Gargle with a solution of sodium chloride!' I said, 'Can I get that in the laboratory?' He replied, 'Salt, smarty!' I hung up the receiver quickly. The joke was on me because I was then teaching chemistry."

The red-faced teacher evidently recovered completely because he went on to become president of Juniata (1894-1910, 1924-1930) and governor of Pennsylvania (1915-1919), and is one of the many eminent Pennsylvanians being saluted this year as the college commemorates its founding on April 17, 1876.

Growth of a Faculty

IN a small room on the second story of the "Pilgrim Building" on April 17, 1876, the only faculty member of the Normal Select School in Huntingdon, Pa., met his class of three students for the first time.

Surely Prof. J. M. Zuck's fondest dreams for the future of his "normal school" would be exceeded by the Juniata College of today, a famous leader in liberal-arts education with an enrollment of near 600 and faculty of 50.

But Prof. Zuck did not stand alone for long, for the following spring the school had an attendance which justified an additional teacher and Miss Phebe W. Weakley became assistant to Prof. Zuck.

The first catalog of the school in 1878 announced seven faculty members. Studies of the normal course, the program of study for teacher preparation, were most easily presented at first by those who were themselves normal-school graduates. "The number of college graduates in the faculty was therefore limited and teachers with university training were seldom employed," according to Dr. Charles C. Ellis in "Juniata College—The History of Seventy Years 1876-1946."

Until the first student was graduated from the college department in 1897, the faculty, including student assistants, did not number more than 20.

In the early days of the college, there was a period of "teacher-trustees." The trustees appointed either from among their number or from among those not trustees, such professors and teachers as would be necessary. Dr. Ellis noted, "... these men, teaching always a long day at a very modest salary, often spent many long hours of the night wrestling with the problems of administration and finance." Some of these devoted teacher-trustees were: Jacob H. Brumbaugh, William J. Swigart, David Emmert, William Beery, Joseph E. Saylor, Martin G. Brumbaugh, I. Harvey Brumbaugh, and J. Allan Myers.

In 1896, twenty years after the founding of the college, there was a faculty of 18 with a student body of 241. It is interesting to note that of the faculty of 18, six carried the name of Brumbaugh. The catalog of that year stated, "The faculty of Juniata College is at present stronger in experience and in scholarship and in professional zeal than ever before. We do not put our student under tutorage of inexperienced teachers. In short, the earnest student will find here every aid to successful work along every scholastic and professional line. We have no room for idlers. We are crowded with earnest, conscientious workers."

PROF. J. M. ZUCK
First Faculty Member

By 1931, there were 534 regular students enrolled. The wish to maintain the personal contact of student with teacher led the trustees to aim at a faculty number consistent with the student body. By 1934, the faculty numbered 48, of whom 16 held the doctor's degree.

For many years "the democratic characteristic" of the institution forbade any faculty distinction—it was 1920 before the ranking of professor, assistant professor and instructor was established. The scholastic background of the faculty was not at first indicated with the ranking.

In 1948, 14 new faculty and administration members were appointed to meet the need of the greatest student body in the college's history, nearly 700. The combined faculty and administration totaled more than 70 persons with the instructional staff numbering 55 members.

The devotion of the faculty to Juniata College is evident in the many members, past and present, with extended length of service. J. H. Brumbaugh, successor to Prof. Zuck, is credited with 46 years of active teaching. Faculty and administration who have served a decade or more are annually honored on Founders' Day.

Colors In 1898

JUNIATA'S college colors—(Yale) Blue and (Old) Gold—were chosen in 1898 and the Juniata Echo heralded the adoption of colors as "another step forward in her college progress."

The Echo of June, 1898 further stated: What does it mean and what shall it mean? Not that we herein announce our disposition to sanction all fuss and noise and barbarity that so often accompany schoolboy demonstrations; not that the institution is losing or shall lose any of that quiet dignity and sterling worth which have characterized her students up to this present; but it does mean—

That we recognize true devotion in the respect which students oft-times pay to their college colors;

That we now have an emblem which shall represent our own Juniata when we assemble in reunions and when we mingle with schoolmen from sister institutions;

That our identity as a college shall not be marked by our exclusiveness

Trapeze Artists, Eh?

FIRST efforts to provide "exercise and amusement" for students at Juniata College, which was founded in 1876, was the erection on the campus of a trapeze with two iron rings and a cross-bar.

This was followed, later, by drills with Indian clubs and dumb-bells—which were held in the college dining room.

but by our conservative sympathy with everything in the college world that is sensible and inspiring;

In short, it means animation, without which the scholar soon becomes a non-entity.

With this interpretation of their significance, let us remember, too, that the colors suggest an inner meaning:

True as the blue
And pure as the gold,
Thus may our lives
To their fullness unfold!

Investment Grows

HOW'S this for the growth of an investment:

Today Juniata College represents an investment in buildings and equipment of $2,429,000—that's $4,253.94 for each of the school's 571 students enrolled this term.

When the Church of the Brethren institution was founded 75 years ago, the total investment was zero, unless the $6.50 tuition paid by each of the college's first three students is counted. Then, the school was a borrowed room, and the equipment was a homemade table and nine borrowed chairs.

Today there are 20 major buildings, fully equipped, a new Memorial Physical Education Building being constructed, and the college is engaged in a million dollar development program.

Strong School Spirit

CHEERLEADERS and organized rooting sections notwithstanding, school spirit today isn't what it used to be. Proof may be found in the history of Juniata.

During the second winter the school was in existence, a smallpox scare sent all the students home, except three. Three young men, determined that the student body of the young college should not be broken up—lest the school fail to survive—lived for two months in an abandoned sawmill in the mountains near the campus.

It is written that "regular hours of study were observed."

Big Sisters

FRESHMAN coeds in most colleges today have a "big sister," an upperclassman who helps her get off to a good start.

This practice, according to early Juniata College history, may have started long ago before colleges had a medical office on the campus. Then "chums" of girls were designated to carry meals and medicine to them when they were ill.

GOVERNOR'S PARTY FOR COMMENCEMENT made the 1916 ceremony even more impressive. Heading this procession is Meyers B. Horner '13, a member of the faculty 1915-1917. Behind him are Dr. Martin G. Brumbaugh (straw hat in hand), governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; Dr. I. Harvey Brumbaugh, president of Juniata College; and the aides to the governor.

Coeds Add 'Human Touch' for 75 Years

STARTING with Juniata's first class 75 years ago, co-eds have made outstanding and important contributions to the influence of the college, in scholarship, professional and social activities and as alumnae in the professions and home-making.

There were three students in the first class that gathered around a long pine table in a borrowed room in Huntingdon on April 17, 1876. Two of these were girls—as against the 230 co-eds enrolled this term in Juniata's anniversary student body.

The first two girls didn't finish the course, but in the meantime other girls enrolled in the infant school so that co-eds outnumbered men in the first graduation class in 1879 two to one. The two were Miss Phebe R. Norris, later to be a physician in Washington, D.C.; and Miss Linnie Bosserman, who became director of a school for Indians in Oklahoma.

Co-ed enrollment grew so much and so fast that by 1890 they needed their own building—Ladies Hall, now Brumbaugh Hall. Along with their increased numbers, Juniata's co-eds have made their mark, socially and professionally, and, in particular, have added the "human" touch to the campus. . . .

. . . In the first years of the school, most students and faculty members boarded in private homes. However, two girls and six men, to save expenses, formed a boarding club, and the girls, of course, did the cooking.

Principal item on the menu was potato soup. The girls, Mary Bowlby and Hannah Cassel, would put the potatoes on the stove at the beginning of the last class, go to school, then return to complete the preparation of the soup. But alas, a historian reports, the soup was invariably scorched.

. . . Also, in the very early days, the men got together in Juniata's first extra-curricular activity, the Eclectic Literary Society. The girls were not invited to preliminary discussions.

"Their curiosity got the better of them, however, and they gathered in the little hall and listened through the keyholes. There must have been a clause somewhere admitting, or at least not excluding them, for at the first regular meeting they were present, and proved their ability and earnestness by their active interest from that time on."

. . . And by 1900, the girls were asserting their independence, as a note in the Juniata Echo, a forerunner of today's Juniatian, student weekly, said:

"Will the gentlemen please remember that they should keep off the diagonal walk which is reserved for the ladies—by order of the girls of the senior class."

The girls were active in sports, too; so active that the constitution of the Boys Athletic Association was revised in 1900 to admit co-eds as members.

There was fun ice skating. As an Echo writer reported in 1902: "We've had good skating on the dam. The ladies were allowed to go over some times and we had great times."

Early in the new century the girls already were playing basketball, and well, too. "Some of the ladies have become quite expert in pitching the leather ball into the baskets which stand ten feet from the ground."

But in 1917 girls' basketball was banned because it was "unscientific and unpedagogical," in other words too strenuous. It was, however, soon reinstated.

Juniata's girls have been active in virtually every kind of student life. A girls' chorus was established in 1917, intercollegiate girls' debate in 1920, a hiking club in 1922, May Day in 1925. And throughout history, of course, co-eds have contributed a major portion to the success of Juniata's religious, dramatic and literary activities.

Juniata's 75th Anniversary Observance

OBSERVANCE of the 75th anniversary year of Juniata College April 15-17 will mark one of the foremost occasions on the college calendar in three-quarters of a century.

Not only will it be of historical significance, but it will also be one of this college's greatest contributions to higher education in the present forward-looking period.

Such internationally recognized university educators as Dr. Raymond Walters, president of the University of Cincinnati; Prof. Mark Van Doren, brilliant professor of English at Columbia University; and Prof. Alonzo F. Myers, esteemed chairman of the department of higher education at New York University, are scheduled to speak.

Equally as impressive is the Anniversary Sunday program which will include as guest speakers Dr. John Thompson Peters, promotional secretary of the General Council of the which are presented in the Bible. In keeping with this spirit, the committee has arranged its Anniversary Sunday program.

The first guest will be Dr. Raymond Peters at the 10:30 a.m. divine worship in the Stone Church of the Brethren. A graduate of Bridge-water College and Bethany Biblical Seminary, Dr. Peters has been general secretary of the church's General Brotherhood Board since 1947. Dr. Peters, a teacher, pastor, youth worker and church administrator, is today widely known for his work for the church and education.

Juniata College's very fine a cappella choir, under the direction of Prof. Charles L. Rowland in his year of retirement, will present the Sunday afternoon concert in Oller Hall at 3:30 p.m.

Churches of the community will be invited to participate in the evening meeting when the Rev. Dr. John Thompson Peters will present an address at 7:30 p.m. He was pastor of the Huntingdon Presbyterian Church from 1938 to 1944.

Dr. Peters, elected promotional secretary of the General Council of his church in 1949, recently returned from an extended tour of Korea having been sent there by the Presbyterian Church and representing Church World Service and other inter-denominational agencies in the interest of relief needs. The breadth and intensity of Dr. Peters' interest in the on-going work of the church is reflected in the numerous offices he has held and his widely successful background in the parish ministry.

The anniversary chapel service will be held in Oller Hall at 10:30 a.m. Monday with President Calvert N. Ellis as speaker.

Heads of the school systems of county, city and town in an 11-county area of Central Pennsylvania will be invited to the campus for the educational dinner and forum scheduled Monday night. The dinner will be held in Oneida Hall at 7 p.m.

The three-day observance is scheduled to begin Sunday morning, April 15, but a previously scheduled All-Class Night on Saturday, April 14, will permit the program to extend over four days.

fessors Van Doren and Myers. Both men are outstanding scholars in the field of higher education.

Professor Van Doren, a graduate of University of Illinois, has been on the faculty at Columbia since 1920. He is a member of a great literary family and has written novels, poetry, essays and made anthologies. Van Doren's "Collected Poems" won the Pulitzer prize in 1939. A poet, critic, novelist and short story writer, Professor Van Doren has been professor of English at Columbia since 1942.

Historical Occasion

Professor Myers, long-time authority in teacher training, will present the views he expresses as chairman of the department of higher education at New York University. He has been a member of the faculty there since 1930 and previously was director of teacher training at Ohio University and director of teacher preparation for the Connecticut State Board of Education. A lecturer and author, Professor Myers is a graduate of Tri-State College, Ind.

On Founders' Day, Tuesday, April 17, a full-dress anniversary convocation with academic procession is scheduled for Oller Hall at 10:30 a.m. President Walters will deliver the principal address and honorary degrees will be conferred on four prominent alumni of Juniata College.

The head of the University of Cincinnati is an internationally recognized authority on college and university administration, holder of eight honorary degrees. Dr. Walters served as dean of Swarthmore College before his Cincinnati appointment in 1932.

A native of Bethlehem, Pa., Dr. Walters received a bachelor of arts degree from Lehigh University, spent four years in newspaper work and returned to Lehigh as assistant to the president and assistant professor of English. He is an associate editor of School and Society and a prolific writer on educational and musical subjects. His annual statistical analysis of American college and university enrollments is the standard in the field.

Following the convocation, President Ellis will be host to special guests at the Anniversary luncheon concluding the 75th anniversary observance.

Juniata's Big Investment

The equipment and endowment of Juniata College—starting literally from nothing in 1876—now represent an investment of more than two and a quarter million dollars in the 75th year.

Alumni Achievement

HONORARY DEGREES will be conferred on four of Juniata's distinguished alumni as one of the highlights of the Anniversary Convocation in Oller Hall at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday, April 17.

DR. JOHN R. BEERY '30 Doctor of Laws

Few graduates of Juniata have made such a rapid rise in the field of higher education as Dr. John R. Beery. Beginning as a mathematics teacher and coach in Martinsburg, Pa., high school in 1930, Dr. Beery has become at 42 dean of the School of Education, professor of education and director of instruction at the University of Miami, Fla.

BEERY '30

Born in Tyrone on March 4, 1909, Dr. Beery was one of eight children—seven attended Juniata—of the Rev. Charles O. and Louella Replogle Beery. He attended Juniata Pa., high school and was graduated from Morrisons Cove Vocational high school, Martinsburg.

In 1930, Dr. Beery was graduated magna cum laude from Juniata College with a bachelor of arts degree in mathematics and chemistry. He received a master of arts degree in mathematics from University of Chicago in 1934 and a Ph.D. degree in education from Columbia University in 1942.

His professional experience has included eight years as high school teacher and coach in Martinsburg, Merchantville, N. J., and Princeton, N. J. From 1939 to 1941 he was associate director of occupational adjustment study, sponsored by the National Association of Secondary-School Principals.

Dr. Beery joined the faculty at University of Miami in 1941 as associate professor of education. He was on military leave from 1942 to 1945 as captain in the Army Air Force and supervisor of academic training of officer candidate school. In 1946 he was advanced to professor of education and coordinator of the University guidance center. Then in 1947 Dr. Beery became dean of the School of Education and one year later director of instruction.

JOHN B. MONTGOMERY, M.D. '21 Doctor of Science

Among the foremost medical men in gynecology today is Dr. John B. Montgomery of Merion, Pa. In addition to conducting a private practice, he is clinical professor of obstetrics and gynecology in Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia.

Educated in the public schools in Huntingdon, Dr. Montgomery was graduated from Juniata with a bachelor of arts degree in 1921. He received his M.D. from Jefferson in 1926 and served as intern for two years at the hospital of the medical college.

In 1928, Dr. Montgomery joined the staff of Jefferson Medical College as private assistant to the professor of gynecology. During the next 11 years he was assistant demonstrator, demonstrator, instructor and as-

KENNETH I. MORSE '34 Doctor of Letters

As a man of letters, Kenneth I. Morse has been actively engaged in journalism since 1943 when he became editor of youth publications for the Church of the Brethren. Then in July 1950, Mr. Morse was appointed editor of the Gospel Messenger, official publication of the Church of the Brethren, Elgin, Ill.

MORSE '34

Born in Altoona on May 30, 1913, Mr. Morse was educated in Altoona schools and received a bachelor of arts degree from Juniata College in 1934. Since graduation, he has taken advance work at Princeton and obtained a master of arts degree in English literature from the Pennsylvania State College in 1940.

Mr. Morse began his career as a public school teacher in Saxton in 1934, then taught in Williamsburg and later in Altoona from 1937 to 1943.

After his appointment as editor of youth publications in Elgin, Mr. Morse took part-time graduate work in Biblical studies at Bethany Biblical Seminary and has been a minister and elder of the Church of the Brethren. Recently he served on the selection and editorial committee for a new Brethren hymnal.

THE REV. HAROLD T. SMITH '35 Doctor of Divinity

Combining successfully the duties of a pastor with those of promoting religious education, the Rev. Harold T. Smith is now minister of Christian education at the Bryn Mawr Presbyterian Church, Bryn Mawr, Pa. He has spent an active and busy life in church youth work.

SMITH '35

Born in London, England, July 4, 1901, the Rev. Mr. Smith came to Canada in 1919 and was graduated from Toronto Bible College in 1924. He then entered the United States and was graduated from Louisville, Ky. Presbyterian Seminary in 1927.

Ordained to the ministry of the Presbyterian Church at Curwensville, Pa., the Rev. Mr. Smith has held pastorates at Alexandria, Pa., and Waynesboro, Pa. He was graduated cum laude in philosophy from Juniata College in 1935. Since then he has taken post-graduate study at Bates College and Louisville Seminary.

Tech's 3-2 Plan

JUNIATA College and Carnegie Institute of Technology will cooperate in a five-year educational program leading to both liberal arts and engineering or science degrees.

Announcement of the cooperative plan—known as the 3-2 Plan—was made jointly in February by President Calvert N. Ellis of Juniata and President J. C. Warner of Carnegie. The program will go into effect next September.

In the plan, students will take three years of liberal arts with a major in science at Juniata, then will transfer to Carnegie for two years of engineering or science. At the end of five years, they will receive bachelor of arts degrees from Juniata and bachelor of science degrees from Carnegie.

With the announcement, Juniata became the 17th liberal arts college to join with Carnegie in the cooperative program.

According to Carnegie officials, the plan is being expanded because it has been found to have two major advantages:

1—It gives a student a chance to build a broad liberal arts foundation before beginning a technical program.

2—It gives a student who does not know whether he wants to study engineering or science some college experience which may help him make a choice.

Carnegie's President Warner said: "Because of these advantages we have invited selected liberal arts colleges to join with us, and we are indeed happy to welcome so fine an institution as Juniata College."

Carnegie, one of the nation's outstanding professional schools, includes a College of Engineering and Science, a College of Fine Arts and a women's college, the Margaret Morrison Carnegie College. The school is nationally known for its Carnegie Plan of Professional Education.

Transfer 3-2 students from Juniata will be able to study one of Carnegie's three pure science curriculums—chemistry, physics or mathematics—or may choose one of the five engineering departments—civil, electrical, mechanical, chemical, or metallurgical. They may also enter the Department of Industrial Management, which combines a specially designed engineering program with a management training stem.

Degree In 32 Months

JUNIATA'S students will be able to graduate in 32 months instead of the usual four years "if they desire to follow the accelerated study program available for them," President Calvert N. Ellis has explained.

The current need for the nation's manpower prompted the president to point out that an intensified education may be obtained under the three-term program now being followed at Juniata.

A regular 10-week summer term is being offered each year in addition to the fall and spring terms.

President Ellis said that Juniata College "definitely would accept freshmen in June" to allow students to launch the speed-up plan with the opening of the summer term on June 18.

A freshman who enrolls at Juniata after graduation from high school this June may be able to meet his graduation requirements by January, 1954, according to President Ellis. Such a speed-up program could be followed only by a "better than average student" who would be allowed to take an extra course in at least two or three terms to meet the 120 credit-hour minimum.

Biennial Catalog

Juniata College's official catalog, formerly issued each year, will be published biennially beginning this April as an economy measure.

Drop of 7½%

THE College's enrollment for the spring term dropped "only slightly in excess of normal," according to an official summary released by the office of the registrar.

Registrations for the present term total 571—a loss of 7½ per cent from the fall term figure of 617.

At the same time last year, the net loss from fall to spring terms was 6 per cent which represented a "normal drop," according to Registrar A. William Engel, Jr.

Hence, the anticipated mass exodus from the campus did not materialize. College officials expressed concern early in January about the number of men expected to leave college to enlist in the armed services.

Only 3 per cent of the student body—a total of 19 men—withdrew from college since September to enter military service. Three of these men were recalled to duty as reserves.

The official registration figures show 341 men and 230 women enrolled for the spring term.

Career Conferences

JUNIATA College, observing its 75th anniversary year, has opened its facilities to high school seniors in a series of weekend "career conferences" on the campus.

Conferences have been conducted by the office of the dean of students to help college-minded students explore career opportunities. Major fields of study—business administration, home economics, education, the arts and literature, science and social studies—have been topics for the conferences.

The five-week series opened on February 24-25 with two conferences—home economics and business administration.

Others were scheduled as follows: March 3-4, education; March 10-11, arts and literature; March 17-18, science; April 7-8, social studies.

New or Passing Era?

WHEN two married couples received their degrees at Juniata College's winter commencement on January 29, most everyone accepted it as typical of a slowly passing era.

But when it was revealed that all four completed their requirements for teaching in secondary education—well, even some school superintendents took notice.

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Bateson of Owings Mills, Md., and Mr. and Mrs. Orville A. Keim of Johnstown, Pa., were among 15 who were awarded degrees by President Calvert N. Ellis in one of three commencements during the college's 75th anniversary year.

Bateson, an Army veteran formerly of Yeadon, Pa., and his wife, the former Frances Harman of Owings Mills, Md., already have made plans to teach in the Baltimore city school system. Bateson majored in history and obtained a bachelor of arts degree. His wife majored in mathematics and received a bachelor of science degree.

The Keims both were awarded bachelor of arts degrees. Mr. majored in history and Mrs. in French. Keim expects to enter graduate school at The Pennsylvania State College before taking a teaching position.

The list of graduates also included:

ALLEGHENY: John W. Africa, 239 Brinton Ave., Pitcairn, bachelor of science degree in biology.

BLAIR: Betty Jane Kauffman, Roaring Spring, bachelor of science degree in sociology; George A. Montgomery, Jr., 223 Hickory St., Hollidaysburg, bachelor of science degree, pre-medical.

DAUPHIN: Carleton N. Rowe, R.D. 1, Halifax, bachelor of science in chemistry.

HUNTINGDON: Anna Mae Beers, 1 West Market St., Mt. Union, bachelor of science in elementary education; Gene K. Shaffer, 1517 Moore St., Huntingdon, bachelor of science in sociology; Harry E. Shannon, 1413 Mifflin St., Huntingdon, bachelor of science in economics and business administration; E. Eugene Speck, 1502 Oneida St., Huntingdon, bachelor of arts, French; Robert R. Walls, 88 Cedar St., Mt. Union, bachelor of science in economics and business administration.

MIFFLIN: Harold M. Kenepp, McVeytown, bachelor of arts, pre-ministerial; Donald A. Kerr, McVeytown, bachelor of science in chemistry.

Class Cuts Legal—IF

Unlimited class cuts are now permissible at Juniata College—IF you are a top-ranking scholar.

Students named to the Dean's list of distinguished students (which requires a 2.75 quality point average) have been given the privilege of optional attendance in the succeeding term with faculty approval.

23% Out of State

IN spite of a concentration of students from Central Pennsylvania counties, Juniata showed an out-of-state enrollment of 23 per cent according to a geographical distribution report from the office of the registrar.

Five foreign countries, ten states and the District of Columbia were represented in the fall term enrollment of 617.

Two students from Germany and one each from West Africa, Brazil, Norway and Panama comprised the foreign student contingent on campus.

The largest group of out-of-state students came from New Jersey—73. Maryland ranked next with 24 and New York third with 13. Other states represented were California, Connecticut, Delaware, Ohio, Virginia and West Virginia.

Huntingdon and Blair counties in Central Pennsylvania ranked one-two in the 43 counties which sent students to Juniata this year. The distribution report showed 92 students from Huntingdon county and 55 from Blair.

Aid—Then and Now!

THE recent campus-wide campaign to raise funds for various agencies of charity and relief recalls the Aid Society—one of the first student organizations in Juniata's 75-year history.

The modern-day campaign is known as the Juniata World Service Fund and is an all-inclusive drive to raise funds for four different agencies—World Student Service, Red Cross, Foreign Student Aid, and missionaries.

In earlier days, the Aid Society supplied clothing to needy children in the vicinity of the college.

The men went from house to house measuring the children, and the coeds made the garments from old clothing.

The work of this organization finally led to the establishment of a "Home for Orphan and Friendless Children," which was supported jointly by college students and townpeople.

Early Yearbooks

Early college yearbooks at Juniata College, bore such fancy titles as, "Leaves of Industry" (1897); "Blossoms of Life" (1898) and "Fruits of Virtue" (1899). The present title, in constant use since 1915, is Alfarata, the name of an Iroquois Indian maid.

The Juniata Sports Parade

Athletic Spirit of '76

THROUGH the 75 years of Juniata College's existence, many names and many events have gone up and down in the Juniata Sports Parade. But it has not all been on an inter-collegiate level.

As early as 1890, according to Dr. N. J. Brumbaugh, "intramural baseball was played and played vigorously with much rooting and razzing."

But earlier than the 90s, physical exercise at Juniata prior to the development of the college course was strictly limited to the campus and was given comparatively little attention by either students or the faculty, wrote Dr. C. C. Ellis in his book "Juniata College."

Dr. Ellis further stated: "The intellectual and the religious phases of the institution's life were not only dominant, but almost exclusive. Intercollegiate athletics was simply not in the thinking of those days. Lectures upon health, however, were not neglected; in fact, they were a feature of the program from the very beginning, because of the vital interest of Dr. A. B. Brumbaugh in the students of the institution which he had initiated."

One of the earliest references to physical education occurs in an editorial in the Juniata Echo of August 1891. In this article Dr. A. B. Brumbaugh said that "the necessity for a more thorough physical training for young men and young women is becoming more pronounced."

It was more than 50 years ago—way back in 1899—that an article in the Juniata Echo revealed "the athletic spirit has never been dead in Juniata." The article went on to point out that the acquisition of a new field has given a new impetus to athletics at the college.

Now quite a few cleat marks have been pressed into that field in the intervening years and we feel safe in saying that the old athletic spirit definitely has not been dead in Juniata. Just take a look at the last several years in football—the 1949 team which recorded the "best season in history"—and in golf. Juniata's golfers rank among the top collegiate teams in the East.

But to get back to before the turn of the century when athletic activity was intramural and voluntary. There was some provision for gymnasium training under the voluntary direction of faculty members—and the gym was located in the basement of Students Hall.

When it was recognized that there was a need to supplement the scholarly plant of the college with physical training through collegiate athletics, plans were formulated to provide athletic facilities. Dr. C. C. Ellis pointed out: "The acquisition of an athletic field in the spring of 1899 was an event of far-reaching significance." In 1901 the present gymnasium was constructed to provide for indoor sports.

In the spring of 1899, first measures were taken to organize a baseball nine. If the dusty records are correct, three team challenges were received and accepted. The College Hill team played its first game with the Huntingdon town boys and won 12-5; then went on to lose 11-1 and win 18-8 with Huntingdon. Juniata also edged Grafton 11-5 and Petersburg 10-2 to wind up the spring season with a record of four wins, one loss.

This was not the end of the first baseball season, however, because Juniata again met Huntingdon in September of 1899 and won 14-12 to register a record of 5-1—still one of the best on the college's record books. Incidentally, the new field was not ready for the first three games of the '99 season and it wasn't until June 10 that the Blue and Gold met Petersburg on the college athletic field.

The lineup for this first baseball team included: F. W. Groff, pitcher; Harry Sieber, catcher; Frank N. Brumbaugh, first base; Isaac Beery, second base; John A. Biddle, third base; J. C. Reed, shortstop; G. M. Eichelberger, right field; G. E. Burget, center field; Edward L. Swartzlander, left field. George H. Wirt was captain.

Actually intercollegiate competition did not make its debut on the Juniata scene until June 5, 1903, when Susquehanna came to College Hill to whip the Tribe's track team 60-41.

It was Susquehanna, now Juniata's most highly regarded traditional rival, which also provided the opposition for the first intercollegiate baseball contest played on May 6, 1904. Once again, the Crusaders were victorious by a count of 11-3.

The next season, 1904-05, basketball entered the intercollegiate sports parade on College Hill. It was a six game schedule against Tyrone, Lewistown high school, Bellefonte Academy twice and Lock Haven Normal twice. The Indians won 1 (39-15 over Bellefonte) and lost 5.

Tennis had long been a popular sport on campus but it was not until May, 1911, that the first intercollegiate match was played. Gettysburg won the match 3-2.

That rough and tough sport of football did not gain favor on the Juniata campus as an intercollegiate sport until 1920 when it finally was given faculty approval after constant pressure by the students.

There was no money to develop the sport, but the students raised $600 and sent Roy Wolfgang '27, who was later one of Juniata's first grid stars, to New York to buy equipment. The team lost the first three games that year without scoring a point (Bellefonte Academy 0-14, Lebanon Valley 0-37 and Albright 0-77) before overpowering Shippensburg Normal School 28-0. Then Lebanon Valley copped a second contest that season 40-0 for a 1-4 record.

In spite of this disappointing start in track, baseball, basketball, tennis and football, the Indians had launched on an extensive intercollegiate athletic program. Since the '20's the only new sport added to the program has been golf.

In four seasons since golf became a varsity sport in 1947, Juniata's rise has been meteoric. The Indians have won 26, tied one, in 30 intercollegiate matches and were unbeaten in 1948 and 1950.

Just what the coming years offer for the Juniata sports parade is difficult to predict. The partial mobilization program in the nation is depleting the ranks of varsity athletes. Hence, it is unlikely that any new sport will be added and questionable if all will be able to continue in the coming few years.

But the Juniata sports parade moves on!

Flashbacks In Sports

Dr. M. G. Brumbaugh said: "We had no athletic games until 1890 when some of us purchased a round ball and kicked it about on Eighteenth Street, east of Moore. Some thought we were headed to predition. We did not mind. The kicking went on merrily each evening. Lincoln Davis, Howard Keim, Will Liven-good, Albert Trent, Samuel McCann and others led in this awful thing."

In the winter of 1896, Prof. S. B. Heckman, teacher of modern languages and English literature, established a small gymnasium in the basement of Students Hall.

Professor Fayette A. McKenzie (now professor of sociology, emeritus) introduced lacrosse to Juniata in 1899. Twenty-four lacrosse sticks were purchased and the faculty requested the trustees to permit an exhibition game whose gate receipts should be divided between the trustees and the players. Permission was granted with the understanding that it was for this game only and for the purpose of finishing the purchase.

WINNING SMILES—and a winning season! Under the capable coaching of Chester C. Wardlow '12, one of Juniata's earliest basketball teams (believed to be the 1912-13 season) chalked up a record of six wins in ten games. Among the victims were Dickinson Law School 67-10, Carnegie Tech 46-24, Susquehanna 54-32, and Albright 42-28, but contests were dropped to Pitt, Franklin & Marshall, CCNY and Albright. Back row: Emerson Landis S13-14, Meyers B. Horner '13, Coach Wardlow '12, Frank Ankeney '14 and Sam Carroll S10-13. Middle row: J. Ward Putt, SAcad 11-13, Cyril Manier S13, Harry Manbeck NE11, AB 17. Front: Ivan "Pete" Bigler, Acad 12, captain.

The Echo of November, 1901, stated that "the events of the first field day at Juniata were pulled off on Saturday afternoon, October 26th."

The first appointed athletic director was Joseph W. Yoder, who was named shortly before the gymnasium was completed in 1901 and who remained in this position for three years while pursuing his college course. Professor Joe Yoder, still a proponent of physical education, lives in Huntingdon and continues an active lecture calendar.

In 1902 an athletic committee was organized and Prof. F. F. Holsopple was named chairman.

Credit for introducing baseball in 1903 and establishing it as an intercollegiate sport has been claimed for both Sheller Emmert and John T. Ryan.

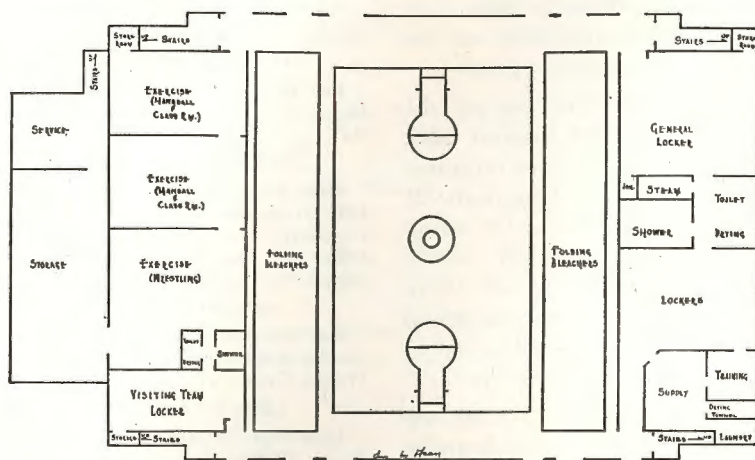

On May 9, 1903, Juniata College "crossed bats" for the first time with a team outside of the Huntingdon area when they traveled to Shirleysburg to meet Rockview Academy. Juniata won 16-3 and the names of Emmert and Ryan are in the lineup.

The first athletic medal was awarded in 1921 to George C. Griffith, according to Dr. C. C. Ellis' history of the college. Griffith played four years of basketball and had been "roving center" and fullback on the first football team.

FLOOR PLANS—MEMORIAL PHYSICAL EDUCATION BUILDING

MAIN FLOOR showing Memorial Lobby, mezzanines and cross-section

GROUND FLOOR outlining playing floor, bleachers, locker facilities

The "J" Club was started in 1926 "to encourage better athletics at Juniata, to improve our athletic relations with other colleges and universities, and to uphold the three virtues for which the club stands: Loyalty, Friendship and Fair Play."

First mention of a training table for J.C.'s athletes was for the basketball team in 1914-15. That year, the team won 8, lost 7.

M. R. "Carty" Swartz, a Lebanon Valley graduate, joined the staff in 1931 to serve the longest period as director of physical education and athletics at Juniata from 1931 to 1942.

Miss H. Elizabeth Fleck served 11 years as director of women's physical education until she volunteered for service with the Red Cross in 1943.

Topping all basketball scoring records for an individual high in a single game, Dick Wareham '45 tallied 42 points on Dec. 16, 1944, when Juniata defeated Elizabethtown 81-46 at E-town. The same season Wareham established an all-time high of 353 points.

"Meteor Mike" Dzvonar '50 powered his way to a new college scoring mark in 1949 by chalking up 13 touchdowns and booting 15 extra points for 93 points to earn the acclaim of Associated Press which called Dzvonar "unquestionably the finest back ever to play for that college. . ."

Basketball By Coeds

CURIOUSLY enough, the coeds of Juniata introduced basketball on the campus.

In the Echo of November, 1899, an article reads in part: "Basketball is the latest addition to the games on the ladies' athletic field. Some of the ladies have become quite expert in pitching the inflated leather ball, about fifteen inches in diameter, into the baskets which stand ten feet from the ground."

The story went on to describe in detail the fine points of the game. "It is skill in tossing it into the basket that we covet so zealously for each time a goal is made it counts two."

At the time, the game was definitely "a comparatively new one" because Dr. James Naismith of Springfield, Mass., had invented basketball only in December 1891—eight years before.

The first report of intercollegiate athletics for girls was a basketball squad in 1915. But this was temporarily stopped in 1917 when basketball for girls was prohibited because it was "unscientific and unpedagogical." The game, however, was reinstated.

Park Hits "High"

THE POINT production of Karl Park '52 established a new "average per game" scoring record for Juniata College as the Indians' basketball team won 4, lost 12, in 1950-51.

The Johnstown junior netted a total of 296 points in 16 games for an average of 18.5 per contest. This bettered Dick Wareham's mark of 17.7 set in 1944-45.

Danny Geiser Leads In Sports Poll

DANNY GEISER '39 has taken a slight lead in the Alumni Bulletin's vote for Juniata's all-time sports greats, according to early returns tabulated through March 1.

But close behind is B. J. "Fuzzy" Andrews '31 and Hardy Engle '23. All three have polled better than 20 votes each from among the 48 ballots which have been received.

Admittedly, that number of ballots from Juniata's far-flung sports-minded alumni contingent is hardly conclusive proof that an athlete rates the Sports Hall of Fame for Juniata. However, it is a good sampling. Now let's encourage others to vote, too. Another ballot is provided on the inside back cover of this issue.

Unquestionably, the vote for the sports greats aroused interest and, in some cases, enthusiastic response. For example, Preston Hanawalt '22 wrote "... it is quite a lift to an 'old grad' to find Hoffman, Donelson, Engle, Snyder, Livengood, Wolfgang and Griffith, all teammates of mine, included in a possible list of immortals in Juniata athletics."

Mr. Hanawalt made a strong case for George Griffith '21, incidentally, whose name did not appear on the original ballot. He pointed out that Griffith was awarded the first athletic medal on College Hill.

There was a definite block of votes for Dick Wareham '45, holder of Juniata's all-time basketball scoring records and whose name perhaps was unfortunately omitted from the original listing. And then another group proposed George "Moon" Beery '29, nine-letterman and captain of the football team. Walter Grove '27 likewise, received support.

All of the names have been added to the new ballot and arranged alphabetically by decades. There are 44 candidates at present.

The following is a tabulation of votes to date:

TWENTY VOTES OR MORE

Danny Geiser '39, B. J. "Fuzzy" Andrews '31, Hardy Engle '23

FIFTEEN VOTES OR MORE

Joe Shaute '22, Dick Snyder '26, Pete Bigler '12, Eddie Donelson S19-23, Ed Grega '41

TEN VOTES OR MORE

Mike Dzvonar '50, Alden Holsinger '30, Bill Livengood '26, Roy Wolfgang '23, Hank Eisenhart '44, Harry Manbeck '17, Jeff Oller '18, Charlie Omo '15, Gene Brumbaugh '46, George Weber '40.

FIVE VOTES OR MORE

Ray Clapperton '47, Harry Trout '27, Sheller Emmert '08, Chester Wardlow '12, Walter Grove '27

LESS THAN FIVE VOTES

Lino Petty '33, Dick Wareham '45, George Beery '29, Cam Easton '28ex, Carl Hoffman '22, Bob Jenkins '38, Mike Snider '26, Joe Beyer '50, Fuzz Eisenhart '47, Holmes Ulsh '50, John Burych '49, Joe Crowell '12, Don Everhart '49, George Griffith '21, Jim Harley '32, Squeeze Long '50ex, Pete Meloy '23, Stan Mickle S41-42, Jack Oller '23, Pat Renninger '36ex, Dick Stever '49.

QUIZ CALL

If Jaycee calls Joycee during the reunion by telephone, it may result in a Juniata quiz game. Here's a preview of some questions:

- Can you name at least one of the three graduates in Juniata's first class?
- Do you know who was hoisted in a basket to Fourth Ladies Hall (now Brumbaugh Hall)?
- Can you name the six presidents of Juniata College?
- Do you know who scored the first touchdown in an intercollegiate football game for the Indians?
